ANTIOCH LIONS WILL SPONSOR CHRISTMAS MUSIC

Will Provide Ice Rink and Assist Yule Charities;
Club Rewards Horan

The spirit of Christmas will pervade Antioch with the approach of the Yule holiday season when Christmas carols will be heard next month over a public address system from three loudspeakers in the business area, according to plans completed by the Antioch Lions club at the dinner-meeting held Monday night at James Hanrahan's Grass Lake resort.

The Yuletide music will be the gift of the Antioch Lions club as one of their contributions to the community's Christmas activities. It will be financed by donations among Lion club members and from the Club's treasury, if necessary. Secretary Frank D. Powles reports that the project has been adequately financed.

According to plans made with T. J. Tronson, owner and operator of the public address system, the sound equipment will be centrally located in a downtown business place and the program of Christmas carols will be broadcast through loudspeakers placed along Main street in the business district.

The first carols will be heard at 2 o'clock on the afternoon of December 10, and thereafter at twenty minute intervals throughout every afternoon and evening from 2 to 10 o'clock until Christmas. R. C. Abt heads the committee on arrangements.

Will Make Ice Rink
An ice skating rink for the community's young and old skaters will be made on the site of the Lions' parking lot just south of the postoffice building, it was decided by the club. Dr. D. N. Deering and Irving Carey will serve on the committee headed by Adolph Kuefer. Proper grading and care in freezing the ice will make the lot into an ideal skating rink, according to committee members.

The Lions will assist and co-operate with the community's regularly established charitable organizations during the Christmas season rather than engage in an independent venture that might result in duplication of effort. They will, however, co-sponsor with the village board the annual kiddies' party to be given on Christmas eve, when there will be a program of music at the community tree and presents will be dispensed to all children of the community.

Reward John Horan for Service

Just before the close of the business session, Pres. Scott announced that Robert C. Abt had a few words to say to the Club. Abt's words took the form of a well-spoken presentation speech made to John Horan, who was the recipient of a beautiful watch and chain—the gift of the Lions club in recognition of Horan's services during the festival held here last August. Horan, Antioch fireman, Legionnaire, and ardent worker in many community causes, had been unable to attend previous meetings to which he had been invited. Thus, the presentation had been delayed for several months. Vice President Abt commended Horan for his many years of community service, and Horan responded in his own inimitable way, thanking the club for the fine gift.

Club members praised Mr. and Mrs. Hanrahan for the fine wild duck dinners served to club members and their guests.

20% of Business

Maybe you have heard about these famous words sent to the governor of one of our middle-western states by a convict sentenced to be hanged the next day. His letter started something like this:

"Dear Governor: They're fixing to hang me on Thursday, and here it is Wednesday."

We are all glad, of course, that we are not in that poor fellow's fix, but if we had his literary ability we might find a better way of saying to you: "In less than six short weeks, Christmas will be here and gone."

Those are mighty important words to every merchant. It means that in most localities retailers will do close to one-fifth of their year's business within the next few weeks. What are you doing, Mr. Merchant, to get your full quota of this seasonal business? Your best ally in pepping up sales is advertising. Buyers will be looking for just the things you want to sell. Why not tell them, through advertising, where to buy the merchandise they want? And when you advertise, use the columns of the Antioch News—"For over half a century the favorite home newspaper."

STAR CHAPTER TO INSTALL NEW OFFICERS FRIDAY

Mrs. Lillian Gaa Is Worthy
Matron of Chapter; John
Gaa Is Patron

It is unusual for a husband and wife to take office together as "worthy matron" and "worthy patron" of an Eastern Star chapter, but this is what will happen tomorrow evening when Mrs. Lillian Gaa is installed as the new worthy matron and John Gaa as the new worthy patron of Antioch chapter No. 428.

The installation will take place in the Masonic hall at 8 o'clock.

Elective and appointive officers to be installed include: Mrs. Rosabelle Anderson, associate matron; Arthur Rosenfeld, associate patron; Mrs. Eva Kaye, secretary; Mrs. Bessie Kaiser, treasurer; Mrs. Deborah Van Patten, organist; Mrs. Grace Drom, chaplain; S. E. Pollock, marshal; Mrs. Clara Westlake, warder; W. M. Anderson, color bearer.

Star "Points"

The Star "Points" are Miss Clara Haling, Adah; Mrs. Lucille Kuitl, Ruth; Mrs. Sophia Hennings, Esther; Mrs. Margaret Dalziel, Martha; and Mrs. Edith Elms, Electa.

The elective officers were chosen at a meeting last Friday evening in the Masonic hall.

"Tracked" Down Turkey
With R. R. Locomotive

A railroad locomotive is, of course, an unusual weapon for a turkey hunt, but in 1874, a conductor on an Illinois railroad was said to have used one in capturing his Thanksgiving dinner. In the autumn of that year, research workers of the Federal Writers' Project, W. P. A., have learned in compiling local guide books, he one day saw a flock of wild turkeys running along the track ahead of his engine when passing through the dense wooded region of Center Grove, east of Momence, Kankakee county.

Standing on the pilot, he waited for the locomotive to overtake the fleeing gobblers, according to an account in the Momence Reporter for Dec. 10, 1874. As they rose into the air, the smokestack knocked down three or four of them. Clutching one of the larger turkeys by the feet, the conductor hauled it into the baggage car, where he found his prize weighed 22 pounds.

"Sons of Legion" Show
To Benefit Bugle Corps

Proceeds from the motion picture, "Sons of the Legion," to be sponsored by the Antioch post, Sons of the Legion, next Monday and Tuesday evenings, Nov. 21 and 22, in the Antioch theater will be applied toward the purchase of uniforms and instruments for the drum and bugle corps.

It is planned that services of the drum and bugle corps will be available, free of charge, to the various organizations and churches of the community, for their programs.

Arrangements are being made to have a director from North Chicago who has trained state championship drum and bugle corps, direct the group.

FIRE DEPARTMENT ISSUES WARNING TO MOTORISTS

Urges Caution to Avoid Monoxide Fume Peril,
Gives Home Hints

Members of the Antioch Fire Department, of which James Stearns is chief, are asking for public co-operation in avoiding monoxide gas poisoning and household cold weather dangers.

The following list of suggestions has been compiled by John Horan, a charter member of the department and former secretary of the Lake County Firemen's association:

"Of all the gases that firemen come in contact with, carbon monoxide fumes are about the most dreaded. It is the average practice of motorists to go to their garages and warm up the motor while all the windows and doors are closed, creating a 'death trap.' As the fumes containing the deadly gas cannot be detected, it takes only a very few minutes while one is in the closed garage to become a victim. If not found immediately, first aid work will be of no avail."

"It might also be well for the motorist to have the car checked for gas fume leaks, as most cars being driven today have heaters and with all windows closed, this is bound to result in a sickly feeling to the motorist making a long trip."

"Check up on Furnace"
"Other gases that should be looked for during the cold weather are in the home. See that your stove or furnace has no leaks, as the generation of gas from this source is also deadly during the night while one is asleep. Bedrooms should be ventilated in cases where any detection of gas or smoke is found. One should especially do this before making any investigation as to the cause of the leak."

"Other hints coming from the local firemen during the cold weather are to check your ash containers (they should be of metal); inflammable materials in basements should be removed or placed in a position that they do not come in contact with overheated stoves or furnaces; overhead floors near heating equipment should be covered where intense heat comes in contact."

"Watch Wiring"
"If using oil burning equipment where there are leaks that come in contact with wood floors or woodwork, cover the same with metal where exposed to heat."

"With shorter days during the winter, more lights, radio and other electrical appliances are used, and for this reason care should be taken to check all wiring and especially electrical appliances exposed to wood work."

"Local firemen are well pleased with the small fire loss in the village and fire district for the past year and the very low accidental death rate. This is accomplished, not by any special effort on the part of the firemen, but by the splendid public co-operation in taking the suggestions passed on by the firemen, who are always keeping well trained in the everyday changes of modern conditions to meet their goals—the saving of life, property and taxes."

Eight Girls Organize
"Two-State Club" Here

The "Two-State 4-H Club," having a membership of girls residing in Wisconsin and Illinois, was organized at a meeting held Friday, Nov. 11, at the home of Mrs. O. L. Raether. Eight girls were present and they became charter members of the new organization.

The club members voted to enroll in both winter projects: "The Party a Month" and the "Leisure Hour Project," which embraces simple handicraft and cooking.

The next meeting of the club will be held on Friday, Nov. 25, 7 to 9 p. m. at the Raether home. Misses Carol Jean and Mary White will be hostesses.

P. T. A. Hears Talk on Books and Magazines

A good attendance was present at the meeting held by the Antioch Parent Teacher association Monday evening in the Antioch Grade school. Speakers included Mrs. W. C. Petty, who reviewed the book, "Understanding Each Other"; Miss Margaret Fitzgerald, who gave a list of books on child problems; and Miss Ayleen Wilson, who spoke on work being done by the P. T. A. in newspapers, magazines and over the radio. Mrs. Fern Lux and Miss Marion Johnson gave vocal numbers.

ARMISTICE DAY OBSERVANCE IS IMPRESSIVE EVENT

Talk by Mayor Talcott and Pageant by Students Are Among Highlights

High school students, children from surrounding schools, and members of the American Legion auxiliary and Sons of the Legion were among the audience at an impressive Armistice Day program held in the Antioch Township High school auditorium last Thursday.

Mayor Mancel Talcott of Waukegan was the principal speaker.

A "Pageant of America," staged by High school students was one of the impressive features of the program.

The observance opened with the "Presentation of the Colors," by the Legion and auxiliary, and the oath of allegiance to the flag.

Mrs. Mary Chase, former district officer of the Legion auxiliary, was introduced by the local president, Mrs. Otto Klass. On behalf of the Antioch patriotic group Mrs. Chase then presented a bouquet of flowers to Mrs. Mary Mann, gold star mother.

H. S. Band Plays

Selections by the high school band and glee club carried out the patriotic theme of the afternoon. Mrs. G. W. Jensen sang "In Flanders Fields," accompanied at the piano by Jean Abt. The reading of the preamble to the American Legion constitution was also a part of the program.

Mayor Talcott was introduced by Otto Klass, chairman of the Legion's Americanization committee, which co-operated with the auxiliary and the schools in sponsoring the observance.

THIEVES ROB LAKE STREET SERVICE STATION SATURDAY

Much Petty Thievery Reported in Community;
Deputies Follow Clues

Sheriff's deputies today are following meager clues that may lead to the arrest of the perpetrators of small robberies and thefts that have been occurring during the past few weeks in Antioch and vicinity.

The nature of the thefts and the methods used by the guilty ones lead both the victims and the investigating officials to believe that the jobs are strictly "home talent." Suspects are being watched and it is expected that arrests will be made within the next few days.

The latest robbery was reported by Robert Schramm, proprietor of the Lake Street Service Station. His place was robbed of a small amount of cash and several cans of oil late Saturday night. Robbers gained entrance by breaking a small pane in the west window and they also wrecked the cash register with tire tools.

Steal Shotgun

Two other thefts were reported on Thursday night. One was the taking of a twenty-gauge shotgun from a car parked on the Chevrolet garage parking lot between 6:30 and 9 o'clock. The gun belonged to Laurel Van Patten, who works at the garage. On the same evening several packages of groceries and other merchandise were taken from a car belonging to Miss Mahel Sayles, linotype operator in the News office. Her car was parked back of the Lux Electric Shop.

"A Mandate from the People"

An Editorial by Ralph E. Church
(Representative, 10th Congressional District)

Now that the "tumult and shouting have died" and the American people have spoken at the ballot boxes, it remains for us to appraise the results and to translate the expressed general will of the people into a definite course of action. That is the task of both parties. Failure to interpret election results intelligently is more or less certain to bring dire consequences to the Administration or the Republican party, as the case may be, when they come before the people again two years hence.

This was the mistake the New Dealers made as a result of the election two years ago, for which they suffered in the voting last Tuesday. In 1936 the New Deal won a landslide victory. They carried every state in the Union except Maine and Vermont. That result was interpreted as a "mandate from the people," with the word "mandate" construed as broadly as possible.

They were too elated with their success to remember that 17 million people expressed themselves in opposition. They didn't realize there was or could be any opposition to the New Deal that should be considered. They interpreted the 1936 election results to mean the New Deal had a "mandate" to do everything and anything they saw fit. In that interpretation the New Dealers were in error as has now been made clear by the people themselves.

Republican success in this last election exceeded the expectations of all party leaders. Gains were anticipated but no one for a moment imagined that they would be so pronounced and so national in scope.

Naturally, those who are affiliated with the Republican party are rejoicing in the election results. After many years they can hardly be denied this opportunity to rejoice. But, it seems to me, the Republicans will make a serious mistake if, in their enthusiasm of success, they interpret the results as a complete and unequivocal repudiation of everything the New Deal has represented and has done. Such a conclusion would be fatal to the party when it presents its Presidential candidate to the people in 1940.

It is true the American people have said by their votes that they desire an end to reckless experimentation, all "must" legislation to be "rubber-stamped" and these efforts to remake the whole of American society. The people have definitely expressed themselves as desiring a genuine representative and bi-partisan system of government. The electorate has said in substance, "we want a saner, more practical and more effective method of dealing with our problems." That is clear.

But perhaps not quite so obvious from the election, yet nevertheless true, is that the American people want a sympathetic recognition of the good work of the last six years. Worthy social reforms are not to be completely rejected. Rather the people want them accepted and improved upon. They desire a government that is practical and progressive but within their constitution. They want forward-looking men who are attune to the problems of our time and the needs for the future.

That such is the will of the people is indicated by the unusually high quality of men who were selected as Republican nominees and carried the party to victory. In many states. The Republican party has increased not only in numbers but in quality, with a capacity for intelligent leadership. The fact that the Republican party had capable and progressive men on its ticket is one of the reasons why the American people gave the party their support.

There thus seems to me to be but one logical conclusion to draw from the election results of last Tuesday: the American people desire a rational representative government that will follow a middle-of-the-road policy.

Let's Get Down to Business

The business season is at hand, as the shouting and the moaning of last Tuesday's election dies away.

The Department of Justice has been looking down its barrels and drawing sighs on business concerns, medical doctors, financiers and some real innocents who might be accused of monopoly. Trust buster Arnold is raring to go for a "clean-up."

The anti-monopoly committee of Congress and the Administration settles down to work. The word Tory will be seen less often in the Administration's lexicon.

A dozen of the national major industries are fighting for more business and against the depression. But none of them know just where they are at.

Industrial activity has its expectancies that it will reach an average in 1939 about halfway between 1937 and 1938.

Wanted—Justice

A new Justice of the Supreme Court must be named by the President. Although nobody knows what's in the wind the guessers tell us that the Court will jog along with eight justices for the present, and that the ninth member will be named when Congress meets in January, so that the question of confirmation may be taken up at once. But even the most imaginative reporters and commentators haven't guessed who the appointee will be.

Justice Black continues to write dissenting opinions, in conformity to his beliefs that old precedents might be laid aside, for the good of the country. But his minority views, and his recent criticism of the Court, are not impressive. The result is that Black does not grow in esteem, on or off the Bench.

Fog and 'Smog'

Bring a cloud down to earth and you've got fog. You create your own fog when you breathe warm damp air out on a cold day. It's the same at sea: warm, damp air near the water, colder air above fog. Big city fogs combine with smoke to form what long suffering citizens of some cities call "smog."

Lesson for November 20

THE SACREDNESS OF THE HOME

LESSON TEXT—Exodus 20:14; Matthew 5:27, 28; Mark 10:2-16.
GOLDEN TEXT—Keep thyself pure.—1 Timothy 5:22.

Lesson subjects and Scripture texts selected and copyrighted by International Council of Religious Education, used by permission.

The importance of the home as the divinely appointed center of all human life has always made it a special target of Satan. That onslaught of the power of hell is apparently redoubled in our day. Books, plays, movies, magazines, all contribute their filthy efforts to break down all sense of moral responsibility. Sex is magnified, and not in any useful or normal sense, but rather for the stimulating of unholy desires and purposes, the breaking down of Christian standards of living and the ultimate prostitution of the most sacred of all human relationships to a level of which animals might well be ashamed.

The lesson of today should be taught with care and tact, but also with a holy boldness and a plainness that will make it effective for God and for our homes. We begin with a word which is little spoken, while far too often the sin for which it stands is practiced and tolerated.

I. Adultery—a Grievous Sin (Exod. 20:14; Matt. 5:27, 28).

First, let us note that any violation of the divine plan for the marriage of one man and one woman, in loving communion for the founding and maintenance of the home, is a direct violation of the law of God. It is also a violation of the law of man. It brings serious results in the destruction of the home, and in the ruin of individual life—physical, moral, and spiritual.

The words of Jesus broaden the interpretation of the commandment to "cover all sexual impurity in thought, word, or deed. While we recognize that the outward act of immorality carries with it consequences both in the life of the individual and those with and against whom he sins, which do not follow upon the thought of evil without the act, yet it is true that essentially he is guilty who had it in his heart to do the wicked thing, even though a sense of prudence or circumstances hindered its execution. We need clean hearts and minds if there are to be clean lives.

II. Marriage—a Divine Institution (Mark 10:6-9).

As the proper background for a discussion of divorce our Lord makes clear that marriage was ordained by God, and that it involves a holy union of two individuals which makes them one. All those who look forward to marriage should realize that it is not a casual thing, or a merely temporary legal contract. It is a union for life—be it for better or worse, in sickness or health, in prosperity or adversity. All who are married should therefore highly regard their sacred vows.

III. Divorce Limited and Remarriage Forbidden (Mark 10:24, 10:12).

This passage, and other scriptures, teach that divorce is not permitted except on the ground of adultery (Matt. 5:32), and that any remarriage involves the parties in the guilt of adultery. Aware as we are of the laxness of some branches of the church in such matters, and the almost entire lack of standards in the world, we cannot but present the plain teachings of our Lord and urge every reader to follow the commandment of God's Word.

There can be no question that divorce is a major evil in our day. The writer has been astonished to find one family after another in his own respectable neighborhood where the children bear one name and their mothers another, or there are two "sets" of children in one family with different surnames because of divorce and remarriage. In some cases he knows of the fathers of children coming to see their offspring at the home of the second husband. What utter confusion such situations must create in the minds and hearts of the boys and girls!

IV. Children—the Gift of God to the Home (Mark 10:13-16).

How relieved we are to leave the consideration of such sordid, even though vitally important, matters as moral impurity and divorce, and turn to the beautiful picture of Christ blessing the little children. It would appear that Jesus desired to turn the thought of His hearers from the negative "thou shalt not" to the positive solution of the home problem.

Children make the home. They are God's benediction upon the marriage of man and woman. Sad and disillusioned will be the men and women who make themselves childless, hoping thus for more comfort and pleasure. The road to happiness does not go that way. The soft and tender baby hand has led many a couple to full happiness, and the joy of watching our children grow into manhood and womanhood cannot be evaluated in the mint of gold or earthly pleasures.

CHRISTIAN SCIENCE CHURCHES

"Mortals and immortals" was the subject of the Lesson-Sermon in all Churches of Christ, Scientist, on Sunday, November 13.

The Golden Text was, "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature: old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new" (II Cor. 5:17).

Among the citations which comprised the Lesson-Sermon was the following from the Bible: "Beloved, now are we the sons of God, and it doth not yet appear what we shall be; but we know that, when he shall appear, we shall be like him; for we shall see him as he is" (I John 3:2).

The Lesson-Sermon also included the following passages from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures," by Mary Baker Eddy: "Mortals are not like immortals, created in God's own image; but unlike Spirit being all, mortal consciousness will at last yield to the scientific fact and disappear, and the real sense of being, perfect and forever intact, will appear" (P. 205:11).

The Famous Dover Castle

For centuries Dover castle, its gray walls high perched on white chalk cliffs, has been the first object to catch the eye—and the imagination—of voyagers to England. "The white walls of England," the cliffs have been called, in the phrase of Hubert de Burgh, its most notable constable, was "the very key and gate of England." The British preceded the Romans on that hill. Romans gave place to Saxons, the Norman conqueror built on the foundations of all three, and since his day the castle has never been without a garrison.

Childlikeness

JESUS said (Mark 10:14), "Suffer the little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." The great Teacher knew the loveliness and purity of the child thought. How the unquestioning innocence of a child must have appealed to him who constantly faced the unbelief and distrust of a world ready to destroy him! He understood children, and they came to him as naturally as the flower turns to the light, for the sweet, clean thought of a child accepts readily the loveliness of Love, wherever it is expressed.

One may think that when he attains a certain age he will no longer express childlikeness; but this is not so, for childlikeness is the purity and innocence of thought which is untainted by the beliefs of the world. According to a modern dictionary, "childlike suggests those qualities of childhood which are worthy of respect or emulation," while "childish" indicates "its less pleasing and admirable characteristics."

Paul said (I Corinthians 13:11), "When I was a child, I spoke as a child, I understood as a child, I thought as a child; but when I became a man, I put away childish things." We can well afford to "put away childish things"—the petty, trivial suggestions that come from mortal mind. In order not to be hampered by the "childish things" of material sense we must adapt the spiritual concept of existence.

Mortals sometimes pride themselves upon their skeptical outlook on life, failing to realize that Life, God, is expressed only in loveliness and spiritual beauty. We cannot afford to carry us day by day the burden that results from materiality. The egotism and conceit of mortal mind's claim to power tend to adulterate the confident and abiding sense of trust we should have in our Father-Mother God. Childlikeness includes joyousness, spontaneity, and a pure uplifted outlook on life. These we need so much in a world darkened by its own self-importance, troubled by wars and rumors of wars, the fears of mad ambition, and the pride of place and power.

In "Miscellaneous Writings" Mary Baker Eddy states (p. 110): "Beloved children, the world has need of you,—and more as children than as men and women; it needs your innocence, unselfishness, faithful attention, uncontaminated lives. You need also to watch, and pray that you preserve these virtues unstained, and lose them not through contact with the world."

Is it not probable that Jesus, in dealing with the self-assurance of the doctors of the law, the Phariseism of the priests and rabbis, the eternal unbelief of the carnal mind, felt relief when there appeared before him the sweet, loving, wholesome purity of the child thought? Children, doubtless, recognized his tenderness and purity, and felt at home with him. He, likewise, felt at home with them because of their sweet thinking. It is possible for all to include this same sweetness in their thinking, regardless of what mortal mind argues about age.

Use Toys to Teach Tots Safety Rules

Miniature Cities Set Up in Ohio Playgrounds.

MANSFIELD, OHIO.—Nearly 500 pre-school age children were taught traffic rules during the summer by driving toy automobiles in the streets of miniature cities laid out on playgrounds.

Traffic Patrolman Fred C. Beals of the Mansfield police department and a playground instructor, Betty Braden, supervised the unusual traffic education program.

"The children now have a thorough understanding as to the meaning of the 'stop,' 'caution' and 'go' signals of traffic lights because miniature streets' traffic was regulated by small lights," Beals said.

"Although the children could not read—they were from 4 to 6 years old—they know now the meaning of traffic signals and of white lined pedestrian lines."

He said that he and Mrs. Ruth Robins, a kindergarten expert, devised the system to train the child at an early age in the principles of road safety so that these principles would eventually become automatic with him.

"The program works along the same lines as the beginner in school learns to write," Beals said.

"After he is taught the fundamentals of writing, he practices it until it becomes a thing that is guided by his subconscious mind."

Miniature cities were set up on six Mansfield playgrounds and one on a Shelby (Ohio) playground to carry out the traffic education program. One group of children were the pedestrians and another group drove the toy automobiles.

Beals said that the children who received this traffic training and who entered school this fall know how to cross streets safely on their way to and from school.

Marital Quarrels Over Tobacco in Past Shown

WASHINGTON.—Women's use of tobacco may cause marital strife in the twentieth century, but it was the men's smoking that caused trouble in the sixteenth century, books on display here reveal.

The collection of 3,500 volumes—some dating back to the sixteenth century—was owned by George Arnets of New York, whose family has been interested in tobacco commerce and culture for three generations.

Arnets spent years collecting fine copies of all books referring to the weed that the Indians taught white men to use.

While men praised tobacco as the "holy herb" and "jevil weed," the women the collection showed, frowned on the "fume suckers" that threatened marital happiness.

In "Tobacco Tortured," a wife pleaded with her husband to stop smoking.

"Oh, husband, my husband," she wailed, "mine only husband. Consider, I beseech thee, thy dearest, thy loving and thy kind-hearted wife . . . Why dost thou so valuably prefer a vanishing filthie fume before my permanent virtues . . . Have not I here brought forth an armada of children unto thee?"

Woman Leads as Trapper Of Predatory Animals

EAGLE PASS, TEXAS.—The record of trapping more mountain lions than any other person employed in the eradication of predatory animals by the Texas Predatory Animal Control association during the last fiscal year is held by Mrs. Bessie Kennedy of Eagle Pass. She has for her territory Maverick county, bordering the Rio Grande.

During the last 12 months Mrs. Kennedy has captured eight mountain lions, 154 coyotes, 40 bobcats, and many smaller predatory animals, according to C. R. Landon, district director of the association. She sets and looks after the traps herself.

Her husband also is one of the most successful trappers employed by the association. His work, however, is less difficult than that of his wife, because he is assigned to patrol a woven wire enclosure containing about 6,000 sheep. He captured during the year five mountain lions, 94 coyotes, and 20 bobcats.

California's First Jail Was Vessel, Records Show

SACRAMENTO.—Only historians remember that California's first prison consisted of a ship anchored off Point San Quentin, in San Francisco bay, back in 1852.

Old records in the state house brought this strange fact to light in connection with the early history of San Quentin prison, the penitentiary for first offenders on the north end of the bay.

For five years after the American occupation, California had no fixed penal laws or penal institutions. Local jails were scarce and the large ranches maintained their own adobe guardhouses for their lawbreakers. Cross-road justice from the nearest tree in the early gold days seemed effective and sufficient.

After several years of leasing out prisoners to farmers, the legislature selected a site for a prison in 1852 and a prison ship was anchored until the buildings would be erected. The ship held 30 to 50 men.

LARGE HOG LOSSES ARE FROM DISEASE

Best Plan Is to Keep Swine From Any Infection.

By Dr. C. D. Grinnell, Veterinarian, North Carolina Agricultural College, WNU Service.

Keeping swine free from diseases and parasites is one of the biggest problems in hog production. Heavy losses are suffered by farmers whose pigs are stunted by diseases and parasites.

Since some of the diseases are hard to cure, and many prove fatal in a large number of cases, the best method of disease control is to keep the swine from getting infected.

A clean pasture for the hogs to range in is much better than an old hog lot, and particularly a muddy lot.

Outbreaks of infectious enteritis, or "necro" becomes a serious threat in warm, damp weather. This disease kills many pigs, and stunts others so they cannot grow into profitable hogs.

The organisms which cause enteritis multiply rapidly in warm, damp weather, and lurk in muddy lots where they can attack whole herds in a short time.

Sometimes hogs suffering with enteritis have been vaccinated with hog cholera serum and virus. Farmers are urged not to do this, because the serum and virus are for treating cholera and no other disease.

If you are not sure what is the matter with your pigs, consult a county agent or a veterinarian.

Dark-Yolked Eggs Are Produced by Feed Used

Some markets usually pay more for eggs with light-colored yolks, but some bakers demand the dark-yolked eggs. They sometimes complain of light yolks, especially in the fall or winter when hens are not on range. By proper management of the laying flock and the feed they receive, you can alter the yolk color of eggs to meet the demand for either dark or light yolks, advises a writer in the Rural New-Yorker.

When hens are ranging in the spring and summer months, the green grass which they pick up has a tendency to darken the yolks. Yellow corn has the same effect only to a lesser extent. You can darken the egg yolks easily by increasing the alfalfa leaf meal in their ration. Cottonseed meal will also darken the yolks but it also gives the whites an undesirable color. Soy bean meal does not have this effect, however.

The layers may be confined and fed a ration which contains about 40 per cent yellow corn and 4 per cent alfalfa leaf meal which will produce eggs with a fairly light-colored yolk. Without the meal they may be fed up to 60 per cent yellow corn. If you want darker egg yolks, increase the alfalfa leaf meal 10 per cent. When hens are on summer range, yolks may be lightened by keeping the hens up part of the time and feeding white corn. By keeping watch of the egg yolks you can tell when you have the right balance between white corn and the green range.

Study Soil Conservation

Farmers are not the only ones interested in soil conservation. The butcher, the baker, the family doctor, and the banker, on the corner are all keeping an eye on this new trend in agriculture. Approximately 740,000 persons—from all walks of life—have visited demonstration projects and CCC camp areas in various parts of the country to inspect and study scientific erosion control measures being used by farmers co-operating with the Soil Conservation service in its demonstration program. Of this total, about 500,000 have been farmers who wanted specific information about soil-saving measures and practices, says the Department of Agriculture. Others have inspected the demonstration areas because of public interest in the erosion control program.

Around the Farm

Limestone can be spread before the corn is high enough to interfere.

Thin cattle fatten slowly on good roughage alone and gain faster on good grazing.

Sometimes horses are thin in flesh because of irregularities of the teeth, which prevents thorough grinding of the feed.

Horses endure work better in hot weather if they are turned out on pasture at night with water and salt available.

For a farm family of 5 persons having 2 horses, 10 cows, 5 hogs, and 100 hens, about 600 gallons of water are needed each day.

Savings in mortality during the summer, and during the following laying year, will probably alone pay poultrymen for installing range shelters.

Hines Faces Trial Again

Learn to Love Their Rugs
In Persia, Turkey and other Asiatic countries, whole families sometimes spend many years in weaving a fine rug and come to regard it with such affection, says a writer in Collier's Weekly, that they often sew a note on the rug, asking future owners to be kind to it.

Consider Dew as Tears
Since the destruction of Solomon's Temple in Jerusalem in 70 A. D., the dew that condenses on the Walling Wall has been considered by superstitious people to be tears shed in sympathy with the Jewish mourners, reports Collier's.

The love of all that is good and honorable, the hatred of all that is base and loathsome, to be effective, should be instilled, as far as possible, during childhood and at home.

How Dogs Show Their Age
Naturally, dogs show their age. The average veteran canine will begin to become gray around the muzzle, while eyes tend to serve as a reminder that the years have paid their toll. One year of a dog's existence is equal to approximately seven years of human life. The best way to learn a dog's age is to examine the teeth. The molars serve as a barometer in ascertaining the age of a canine.

CHICK DISEASE IS COSTLY TO FARMER

Cleanliness Urged as Best Method of Control.

Supplied by the College of Agriculture, University of Illinois—WNU Service.

The best way to fight coccidiosis, one of the most widespread parasitic diseases of young chickens, is to practice rigid sanitary measures and thus prevent its getting a start in the flock.

During the early summer farmers are likely to spend considerable money for remedies recommended in the treatment of coccidiosis. However, it is pointed out that although many treatments have been tried and advocated for curing the disease, the opinion of poultry investigators is that none of these treatments is effective.

Daily cleaning and disinfecting of the brooder house and poultry yards is recommended for preventing the spread of the disease, the acute form of which often causes death among birds up to two months of age.

A well-balanced diet supplemented by a generous amount of green feed is important for building up the bird's resistance to coccidiosis. Feeding of a mash containing 40 per cent dried skim milk or buttermilk has been advocated generally as being effective in protecting young chickens from infection. Since results from the use of milk have not been entirely consistent, it cannot be recommended as a cure for the disease.

Coccidiosis is easily recognized by such symptoms as ruffled feathers, pallor, rapid emaciation and bloody droppings.

The disease is spread by contamination of the feed, water and soil with droppings of birds harboring the parasites. Water, shoes, grain sacks, or other objects may carry the parasites. They are also spread by birds or insects which fly from one poultry yard to another. Rats and mice also may serve as carriers of the organisms.

United States 'Safest'

Country for Live Stock

"The United States is probably the safest country in the world in which to raise live stock," says Dr. John R. Mohler, chief of the bureau of animal industry, United States department of agriculture. "In addition, the supply and the wholesomeness of animal products in this country are excelled by those of no other nation."

Step by step, scientific research, he adds, has been whittling down the dangers and losses until the supply of meat and milk has become one of the most dependable elements of national life.

Even in times of widespread drouth and untimely freezing temperatures that curtail cereal, vegetable, and fruit crops, the production of meat and milk continues. Animals not only utilize a variety of feeds but, if necessary, are readily moved from areas of feed shortage to favorable locations.

Nest Talk

The common poultry house nest has an open entrance from the front, but fewer eggs would be broken and less adult cannibalism would occur if a dark entrance were provided from the rear, says a writer in Hoard's Dairyman. This change can usually be accomplished by setting the present nests out from the wall with legs and wall supports and 1 by 4-inch board walls resting on the wall supports. The front should then be closed with a hinged board which enables gathering of the eggs from the front. The nest should be 14 inches square and 12 inches high.

One Crop Dairy Farmer

"One crop" Harry Norton, as he is called by his neighbors around Adolphia, N. J., is a dairy farmer who threw out all his plows and went into grassland farming. Norton feeds his herd grass, 12 months of the year. Half the year the cattle are in pasture, and the other half they eat grass silage and early-cut hay. Grass silage improves the cows' appearance, keeps color in their milk. Early-cut timothy gives heifers more body than alfalfa, he finds. "I let some western farmer raise the grain I need," says Norton. "All I do is spread manure and cut hay. It saves labor and machinery and reduces the cost of producing milk."—The Country Home Magazine.

Culling the Cockerels

Where cockerels are to be saved for breeders, the first culling should be made when from eight to twelve weeks old, says Hoard's Dairyman. For best results the flock should be culled continuously and all through the growing period the birds should be watched carefully and any cockerels showing poor development or lacking in vitality should be discarded. The first culling of pullets may be made at the same time.

Twenty tons of steel are in service on a 150-acre grain and dairy farm completely outfitted with farm machinery and with a full complement of steel fence and steel equipment.

Ten years ago washing machine manufacturers needed six operations to make a tub from the best steel available. Better steel today makes a tub in only two operations, and costs one-third less.

Navy Seeks Air Base in Alaska

Plan Would Give U. S. Aerial Domination Over 2,000 Miles of Water.

WASHINGTON.—President Roosevelt, acting on the recommendation of high navy officials, may ask congress next session for an appropriation to start development of a powerful fleet air base in Alaska to complete this country's Pacific "aerial frontier."

The proposed Alaskan base, long desired by the navy department, theoretically would give the United States complete domination of the air over a 2,000 mile stretch of water from the Aleutians to the Hawaiian islands, establishing a battle theater nearly 2,500 miles from the American West coast in event of a Pacific war.

Sitka, Alaska, was officially designated a fleet air base more than three years ago, but development has been exceedingly slow and at present it will accommodate only six or seven airplanes.

Prefer Kodiak Island.
The proposed new base would probably be on Kodiak island, and the navy department is anxious to make it the equal of such powerful stations as Pearl Harbor, Hawaii, and Coco Solo, Panama Canal Zone.

A board of navy strategy experts was appointed recently to study necessity for new naval shore stations and it is understood that the Alaskan question is being given special consideration.

Some ranking navy officers are convinced that this country should have a naval fueling and repair base in Alaska, also, and it is probable that this will be studied closely in connection with the proposed air base.

At the same time the war department has tentative plans for fortification of some of the Aleutian islands with long-range coast defense guns. Both of these latter projects would require huge expenditures and in all probability will not be undertaken until the fleet air base is completed, if at all.

Improved Defenses.
However, the recent dispatch of 68 navy patrol planes for maneuvers in the Alaskan area is generally regarded here as an indication of imminent improvement of the Alaskan defense system. This was the largest number of navy patrol planes ever sent to Alaska for summer maneuvers.

Some naval experts do not consider Sitka ideally located for a fleet air base and are urging its abandonment, except as a possible advance or auxiliary base, in favor of the Kodiak site, easy to defend and difficult to attack. It is likely that Dutch harbor also may be designated as an advance air base.

The strategic importance of Alaska in the United States national defense system is rapidly increasing due mainly to the growing flying range of airplanes. Military experts point out that the entire Northwest and Pacific coast industrial sections of the United States could be wiped out by enemy aircraft carriers from anchorages in northern waters.

'Flyer' Stays on Floor In 27,000-Foot 'Ascent'

CHICAGO.—A passenger was taken for a "ride" 27,000 feet "up" into the stratosphere and "down" again without leaving the floor of a toolshed at the Chicago Municipal airport.

W. W. Davies, research engineer for the United Air Lines, has designed a gray-steel apparatus resembling a boiler that makes possible reproduction of conditions which high-flying aviators face in the stratosphere.

Because of the growing interest in high-altitude flying it became necessary to obtain detailed information on the performance and reactions of human beings and equipment in the thin atmosphere of the stratosphere and stratosphere, four or more miles above the earth's surface. Actual flights are expensive and time consuming. Hence, Mr. Davies' boiler-like stratosphere machine.

Sensations, reactions—everything but high-altitude temperatures—are duplicated in the air-tight tank. In it Mr. Davies has gone "as high" as 28,500 feet, all inside the tool shed. His device is being used chiefly to develop the oxygen equipment needed in high-altitude travel.

Old Deed Gives Title To a Property 'Steak'

ROCHESTER, N. Y.—Two time-worn deeds, one 89 years old and the other 77 years old, have been filed in the county clerk's office.

The yellowed documents were discovered by a woman while going through a bundle of old legal papers left by her father. One of the deeds, in setting forth the boundary lines of a farm, referred to property stakes as "steaks."

Name Hugh Means 'Intellectual'
The name Hugh, of Teutonic origin, means "intellectual" or "intelligent." Hugh Capet, king of France in the Tenth century, founded the Capetian dynasty which lasted from 987 to 1328. St. Hugh was bishop of Grenoble in the Twelfth century. Other Hughs of the past: Latimer (d. 1555) English reformer, burned at the stake; Legare (d. 1843) attorney-general of the United States; Miller (d. 1856) Scotch geologist who educated himself by reading in the intervals of his work as a stonemason and became one of the first writers to make geology popular; Baron Strathairn (d. 1895) English field marshal; and Cameron (d. 1918) Scottish painter.

Our Three Nervous Systems

Man has three nervous systems. The central nervous system, which consists of the brain and its associated fibers that extend to all parts of the body, is particularly associated with the sense organs and muscles. The autonomic and sympathetic nervous systems are associated with the internal organs and processes which operate themselves without aid from the other nervous system. These two systems bear the same relationship to each other as the gas pedal and the brakes on an automobile. Normally these actions balance each other.

Foxglove a Powerful Poison

Foxglove is not native to the United States, but is brought from Europe as a garden plant and often escapes to grow wild over sunny hills and along roads, says a writer in the Washington Post. Its tall stalk of bell-like flowers has earned it many vivid names, such as "bloody fingers," "dead man's bells," and "fairies' thimbles." Though its digitalis has kept alive many a person with heart disease, it is also a powerful poison. When a patient gets an overdose, everything he sees looks blue. Properly administered, however, the drug regulates circulation of the blood.

Excavate Ruins of Aged Skyscraper

Fire Swept Indian Apartments 1,200 Years Ago.

CHICAGO. — Skyscraper apartment tenants who never had seen an elevator left their dinner uneaten when they found their homes burning 1,200 years ago. Where they went, no one knows.

But because they left so hurriedly, field museum scientists are better able to understand the culture of a prehistoric Indian village they have excavated at a steep point on the south rim of Cahone canyon, in southwestern Colorado.

Pottery dishes, charred corn and beans left in them, and household furnishings they were forced to leave behind all help to piece together the story of the villagers. They are believed to have been the ancestors of the Pueblo Indians.

One of the most important discoveries is the ruin of the largest kiva or Indian ceremonial temple ever found, Dr. Paul S. Martin, leader of the expedition, reported to the museum. He said of the kiva (pronounced to rhyme with Eva):

"This apparently was intended to accommodate the people in their religious ceremonies. There are indications that it was originally a dance plaza, perhaps only partially roofed."

The great circular slab structure is 31 feet in diameter. It is about two feet deep.

Living quarters were found a short distance away. They are rows of masonry walled rooms which command a wide sweep of the canyon, and subterranean homes laboriously hewn from rock. The larger rooms have hearths, and nooks for household necessities.

Doctor Martin has been unable to determine the cause of the fire, which swept an entire row of the rooms. He suggests accident or an attack by enemies as the cause of the disaster.

Doctor Martin, chief curator of the museum's department of anthropology, has been exploring in Colorado for eight years. The homes in the village are believed to date from 700 A. D., when Indians of the basket maker culture lived in the region. They were well advanced in the arts architecture, and in agriculture.

Begging Bears Said to Be Declining in California

YOSEMITE NATIONAL PARK, CALIF.—National park officials are waging an intensive campaign to change the resident bear from a beggar to a forest dweller that will hunt down its food instead of asking for it.

The trouble is, according to Superintendent Lawrence C. Merriam, that the park's thousands of visitors insist upon feeding the bears despite regulations forbidding the practice. As a result of this illegal feeding the bears have become too lazy to forage for food, preferring to sit around and wait for a hand-out.

Unfortunately for the violators of the ordinance the bears are lending a helping hand in aiding park authorities to return them to the woods. In the illegal feeding so many persons have been scratched and clawed that the public is beginning to pay a little more attention to the rules.

Merriam reports that while last year there were 65 persons treated in the park hospital for bear injuries, the number this year was only six.

"A few more years like the last one," he declares, "and the bears will become bears instead of just plain beggars."

Rare Birds Flock Near Colonel Lindbergh's Isle

PARIS.—Birds of a rare feather are flocking to the vicinity in which Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is living and the ornithologists can't figure out the reason.

The birds are of a rare Arctic species known as aleut. They come every spring and summer to the island of Muzic, one of that small group of islands off the French coast which includes Illes, the island purchased recently by Colonel Lindbergh, and St. Gildas, which is owned by his friend, Dr. Alexis Carrel.

In the fall the birds fly north with their young. Scientists, by attaching rings to some of the birds, have learned they spend their winters in the Bering sea and Kamchatka regions.

The route of the birds in their migrations is unknown. The islands have been declared a sanctuary for them.

California Ranch Home Contains Two Theaters

HOLLISTER, CALIF.—Mr. and Mrs. Ransom Somavia held a house warming in honor of the completion of their new $200,000 home on their Queen Sabe Rancho.

The mansion is one of the most elaborate in northern California. Among other things it contains 12 bathrooms, a Roman bath, a separate wading pool for their three small children, a gymnasium, a theater wired for sound, another for plays, a chapel, and a shooting room for which targets have been placed on a nearby hill.

World's Largest Ice Field Found

Stretches Over 235 Miles In Alaska and Yukon, Expedition Says.

WASHINGTON, D. C.—Discovery of what is believed to be the world's largest ice field and glacial group outside the polar regions has been announced in dispatches from Bradford Washburn, leader of the Harvard university-National Geographic society expedition to Alaska.

"Heads of the Martin river and Miles glaciers are also connected to the long icecap reaching from Cape St. Elias, in Alaska, to the Alsek river valley, in Yukon, discovered on our flight of August 20," Mr. Washburn wired to the society's headquarters.

"On a spectacular flight which circled Mount Logan and Mount St. Elias, second and third highest peaks on the North American continent, the expedition made aerial photographs of an unexplored area of southeastern Alaska, to be used later in mapping," the report to the society continues.

"This flight over icebound fastnesses, previously unvisited by man, reveals that the Bering glacier and the Malaspina glacier, whose known extent had already won for them the titles of the world's largest non-polar rivers of ice, are merely two overflows from a vast highland ice field shrouding a stretch of Alaska about 235 miles long, equal to the distance from New York city to Washington, D. C."

Long Laid Unseen.

"Explorations of the Harvard university-National Geographic society expedition have outlined a coast range of mountains, stretching from the Copper river valley above Cordova, Alaska, to the Alsek river valley in Canada's Yukon, which walls in a mighty reservoir of ice. Completely hidden behind the mountain wall, the mammoth octopus of ice has lain unseen and unapproachable, its size to be guessed only from the tentacles of glaciers. It has clamped around the coastal range. Largest of the numerous streams of ice overflowing from this giant ice bowl, cupped high among peaks two and three miles above sea level, are the Bering and Malaspina glaciers—30 and 50 miles wide, after they have broken through the mountain wall and ground their way down almost to the sea.

"In a single flight of discovery over Alaska's newly revealed ice, giant, the expedition saw more ice than is known in all the famous glaciers of Europe put together."

Summing up Washburn's reports and commenting on their significance, a bulletin from the National Geographic society says: "Photographing 1,500 square miles of territory, the expedition found (1) new ridges in the coast mountain range, (2) new glaciers between the range and the Chitina river 50 miles farther inland to the north, and (3) a glacier system uniting the Bering and Malaspina glaciers with the Seward glacier in the southeast and with the Miles glacier in the northwest."

Difficulties Encountered.

"Most of the newly discovered ice bowl lies athwart and to the west of the Alaska-Canada boundary line, just where it turns due north to the Arctic ocean. In surveying this frontier, famous as one of the longest straight-line borders ever marked, some of the difficulties in running the line along the 141st meridian were due to the eastward overflow of glaciers from the then unknown ice field. The massive glacier bowl pours its slow and irresistible flood across the border southward, between Mount Logan and Mount St. Elias, into the Seward glacier, which in turn adds its congealed volume to the great Malaspina.

"The great glacier system explains why there is no land communication between the southern 'panhandle' of Alaska, containing the capital, and the major portion of the territory to the north. The land link is 'broken' by a glacier barrier of more than 200 miles of perpetual ice.

"The Malaspina glacier is so extensive that it was not recognized as a glacier until 1880; rocks and soil cover the ice around the edges, and forests take root in the ice-borne earth. It is a composite ice stream, formed by about a dozen coalescing glaciers, the largest of which is the Seward.

"When the new glacier system is mapped, there is little doubt that Alaska will be confirmed as the world's largest stronghold of the ice age outside the polar regions."

Gaspe an Old Settlement

Gaspe is reputed to be the oldest known part of North America and historians say it had been visited by adventurous white men from Iceland and Greenland as early as the Twelfth century. Many parts of the coast are noted for their rugged grandeur and one of the scenic marvels is the giant rock at Percé, where the herring gull and the cormorant breed and have bred for hundreds of years.

Steam for Blowing Engine Whistle

You might think that little energy is needed to blow a locomotive whistle. But you would be wrong, because train whistles use a considerable amount of steam. An expert has computed that 2,434,020 tons of coal are needed to raise the steam for blowing locomotive whistles every year.

Business Guides

THROUGH the growth of the motion picture business the public is becoming more and more picture-minded and advertisers have resorted to a large degree to the realism of pictures to increase the effectiveness of their advertising. The importance of good illustrative art in advertising is realized and advertisers are employing the best artists and illustrators for magazine work and to a certain degree for newspaper advertising.

If you are interested in advertising it is well to devote considerable study to the value of the illustration. If you are using illustrations in advertising copy here are some of the questions that should be asked: Will the picture assist in selling? Will it add to the composite appeal of the advertisement? Will it make the advertisement more dominant in competition with other displays? Will it clarify quickly, a complicated point? Will it possess vigorous human appeal? Will it be timely? Will it attract attention? Will it convey no instantaneous impression? In these days these things are to be expected of illustrations.

While the value of good illustrations in advertising is recognized, modern typography has improved and type faces are available that an all-type advertisement can in some cases be entirely satisfactory. It is, therefore, an error to assume broadly that every advertisement should be illustrated, but every square inch of advertising space should contribute something toward satisfactory results in sales and profit.

Welles, of Radio "Scare" Fame, Todd School Pupil

Orson Welles, whose too-realistic rendition of "The War of the Worlds" over a national radio network recently caused a wave of, first, wide-spread cases of hysteria and alarm among excitable radio listeners, and then wide-spread smiles as the more amusing stories of the unintentional "hoax" began to spread, received his first training in dramatics at Todd school in Woodstock.

Welles, who was the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Welles of Kenosha, entered Todd school at the age of 11, and within five years was writing, producing, directing and acting in school plays.

He then went abroad, succeeded in joining the famous Abbey players in Dublin, returned to play minor parts with Katherine Cornell, co-operated in a summer theater festival season at Woodstock, and at 23 is hailed as one of the most capable younger legitimate stage and radio actors.
